WHEELING, JUNE 13, 1890.

The Cheyenne Indians are on the rampage and a general uprising is feared. The army on the frontier may have enough employment to prevent them from encumbering to emigrate during the heated term.

There are no signs that the predicted cholera epidemic is approaching, but it will not do to grow careless on account of this fact. In times of health prepare for disease. Be careful of what you eat and observe all proper sanitary rules.

NOTWITHSTANDING the silly charge that the Louisiana Lottery is a Republican machine (made for political effect), quite as many Republican newspapers and leaders as Democrats are found in the lines of those who denounce its attempt to gain a new lease of life.

The West Virginia University has just finished one of the most prosperous years in its history. Under the efficient management of President Turner it is rapidly reaching a front rank among the higher institutions of learning in the country. The citizens of the State point to it and its work with pride.

GEORGE H. PELL, the Wall Street bank wrecker, who stole thousands of dollars worth of bonds got off with a sentence of seven and a half years, which may be reduced to five years. The same day a common thief who stole an insignificant amount of money was given the full extent of the law. Comment is unnecessary.

WARD McALLISTER says that no man of fashion will walk upon the streets with one who is dressed shabbily. Ward need not worry. No poor but honest man who cannot afford to dress fashionably is going to disgrace himself by seeing McKellar's acquaintance, or of asking the privilege of appearing on the street with him.

The report of the Board of Directors of the Children's Home, published this morning, makes a creditable showing for that institution, and is of great interest, proving, as it does, that a worthy charity in our midst is not only being well supported, but that it is doing a good work. May future years be fraught with increased prosperity to the Home.

The New York Star, Mr. Cleveland's organ, is having considerable to say about "apathy about the tariff among Republicans." The Star can be humorous when it wants to, and it seems to be in a funny mood just now. Republicans showed their apathy about the tariff in 1888 and they are likely to show up full with a similar amount of it. If that is the sort of "apathy" the Star means, we say give us more of it.

Democratic papers are beginning to "let the cat out of the bag," and to expose their real motive in raising a howl about the census questions. As we suspected, their role design was to discredit the reports in advance, and already they are indulging in insinuations that "the Republicans will alter the returns to suit their own convenience." The Democratic party must be in a desperate condition when it is obliged to resort to such methods to create campaign material.

A British artillery band in Canada refused to travel on a Canadian excursion boat floating the United States flag. The commander of the boat refused to haul down the stars and stripes and the band was left at home. The action of the musicians was taken by order of a British Colonel, who ought to feel heartily ashamed of himself. It has been a long time since we have had a war with England, but it seems that the "bloody shirt" has not yet been washed.

The feeling between the Republican factions in Pennsylvania has reached a stage where it may be necessary after all to nominate a dark horse for Governor. If this is to be done it is to be hoped that the convention will profit by the recent and dark horse experience in Allegheny county, and make the nomination decent and in order. Any other course would bring about certain defeat for the party even in Pennsylvania. This is an "off year," and off years are generally poor years to administer rebukes where rebukes are needed.

The Tobacco Tariff and the American Tobacco Tariff.

It has been frequently declared by the partisan press, since the passage of the McKinley bill by the House, that there is considerable dissatisfaction among dealers in leaf tobacco over what they say is an unjust "tax" of $1 per pound additional on Sumatra tobacco. It is urged that this "tax" must be paid by the small manufacturers of cigars, and that there is no substitute as no tobacco grown in the United States can be used for wrappers.

A correspondent of the New York Press, writing for information, calls attention to these complaints, and inquires how profit may accrue to the manufacturers of cigars from the operations of the McKinley tariff bill. In its reply the Press says truly as to the statement that "no tobacco grown in the United States can be used as wrappers," that it is a huge mistake.

The fact is that in Wisconsin, Connecticut and Massachusetts enough wrapper tobacco is raised to more than supply the demand. Wrapper tobacco is also raised in New York, West Virginia and Pennsylvania. The Press shows that previous to 1880 not a pound of Sumatra tobacco was imported into the United States. All the cigars made in the United States previous to that year, with the exception of a very few Havana cigars, were wrapped with tobacco grown in the United States, and they were a better article than the Sumatra wrapper can ever make.

As a thing to be smoked, the Sumatra wrapper is inferior to the native wrapper. The Sumatra wrapper is bitter to the taste, so bitter that, entire cigars are never made of it; an "all Sumatra" cigar is not to be found in the market. The reason why Sumatra is used is that it is very thin and pliable and tough, and makes a very smooth and good looking cigar superficially. The importation of Sumatra tobacco began with 33 pounds in 1880 and rose to nearly 6,000 pounds in 1888. Meanwhile the production of cigar leaf fell off in the six States already mentioned from 74,000,000 pounds in 1879 to 57,000,000 pounds in 1888. As a pound of Sumatra tobacco wraps as many cigars as from three to five pounds of American wrappers it is clear that the Sumatra importation is substantially equal to the American loss in production. The Sumatra tobacco is all raised in the Isle of Sumatra by Chinese labor, the plantations belonging to rich merchants in Amsterdam.

The coolie gets on an average less than 16 cents a day. The American pays $1.50 a day for field labor and $2.75 for sorting. The result, says our correspondent, is that the American labor cost is more than 1,200 per cent higher than the Chinese labor cost. The Sumatra wrappers bring at least $1 a pound for exportation. The proposed duty of $2 per pound does not exceed 200 per cent ad valorem. In the face of a difference of labor cost of over 1,200 per cent, the duty is every way reasonable. The growers of cigar leaf must have substantial protection or their industry will disappear.

Any one who is willing to let the tobacco farmers of America be crushed out by Chinese labor costing less than sixteen cents a day, for the benefit of rich merchants in Amsterdam who have made over 100 per cent yearly on their investments, must be a free trader indeed.

England's Loss Our Gain.

Do the people of the United States want to keep out of this country a new and great industry? We think not. England is aroused to the importance of the tin-plate industry in the McKinley Bill. Here is what the London Times and Standard say:

"The most important item in the new schedule of the American tariff bill is that affecting tin plate. If this is carried the occupation of three-fourths of those engaged in this country in the tin plate trade will be gone, and English employers and their workmen, if they continue in the tin plate business, must employ their capital and labor on the other side of the Atlantic."

The fact, as reported, that the German army has the lowest death rate of any in Europe is attributed to the practice of frequent bathing in warm water being made compulsory.

A Georgia editor apologizes for the scarcity of local news in his paper, and says: "We will have plenty of news next week, as we have taken a census contest, and we are on the inside track of every citizen in the country."

The collector of customs in New York last week received from an Indiana postmaster this note: "Collector of foreign duties—Can you inform me what duty it would be on and on what conditions please let me no by return mail and oblige yours etc."

A large alligator crawled into a six-foot railroad cut near Abbeville, Ga. The alligator fell just at the rear of one of them. The negro was not bitten, but was frightened almost out of his wits. Mr. Haygood, the contractor, captured the alligator and skinned it.

It is now established that flowers and the perfume distilled from them have a salutary influence on the constitution and are a therapeutic agent of high value. In the case of La Grasse, France, where the making of perfume is largely carried on, it is said to be unknown, owing to the odorous vapors from the numerous distilleries.

A colored couple living in Sumter county, Ga., on the night of the 10th placed a bucket filled with water upon the floor near their bed, in order to have it convenient for drinking during the night. Their baby slept with them, and by some means crawled out to the edge of the bed and fell, head first, into the bucket of water, where it was found next morning dead.

An Hospitable Horse.

A remarkable degree of intelligence and kindness to a stable companion is shown by a horse in Boston. One of the mounted police officers leaves his horse in the stable connected with the station on Blue Hill avenue, near Dudley street, while he answers to the roll-call at night, and again at 6 o'clock. The officer fastens his horse to a post forming one corner at the head of another horse's stall, and as soon as the animal is tied the officer picks up a mouthful of hay, forces it through the iron grating about his stall, and waits until his guest has eaten it. Then he repeats the operation, and continues his hospitality until the officer returns for his horse. He began to do this without any suggestion from the men, and he does it twice a day, much to the satisfaction of his visitor. His performance attracted considerable attention in the neighborhood, and his politeness has won him many friends.

English Export Points.

The export trade is now practically over for the season. The Board of Trade returns enable us to count up the results, says the London Live Stock Journal.

The value of animals exported during the eleven months was 21,107,477, against 23,811,134 last year, of which 2,032,508, against 2,701,731, was received for horses.

The number of horses exported was 13,253, against 12,493 last year, there having been 2,979 horses, 5,257 ponies and 1,019 geldings exported. Of the stallions 1,384 were shipped to British North America, 621 to the United States, 31 to Holland, 15 to Belgium, 7 to France, 840 to other countries. Of the mares 1,188 were shipped to British North America, 418 to the United States, 44 to France and 1,723 to other countries. It is evident from recent correspondence that the large number of horses shipped to British North America are really intended for the United States.

The number of horses imported was 13,335, against 11,123 last year, the value having been $203,111, against $198,737 last year.

The Spring Medicine.

The popularity which Hood's Sarsaparilla has gained as a spring medicine is wonderful. It possesses just those elements of health-giving, blood-purifying and appetite-restoring which every body needs to meet the demands of the season. It does not continue in a dull, tiresome, unsatisfactory condition when you may be so much benefited by Hood's Sarsaparilla. It purifies the blood and makes the weak strong.

A Cure for Constipation and Sick-Headache.

Dr. Silas Lane, while in the Rocky Mountains, discovered a root that when combined with other herbs makes an easy and certain cure for constipation. It is in the form of dry roots and leaves, and is known as Lane's Family Medicine. It will cure sick-headache in one night. For the blood, liver and kidneys, and for clearing up the complexion it does wonders. Druggists sell it for 50 cents a package.

Eggs.

The transition from long, lingering and painful sickness to robust health marks an epoch in the life of the individual. Such a remarkable event is treasured in the memory and the agency whereby the good health has been attained is fully remembered. Hence it is that so much is heard in praise of Electric Ditties. So many feel they owe their restoration to every one who uses the Great Electric Ditties, and for clearing up the complexion it does wonders. Druggists sell it for 50 cents a package.

What Bell and Edison are to the telephone, Ga., on the night of the 10th placed a bucket filled with water upon the floor near their bed, in order to have it convenient for drinking during the night. Citizen—"I wish to see the health officer." Clerk—"He is not in." Citizen—"Where is he?" Clerk—"Gone out of the city for his health."

A popular soprano is said to have a voice of fine timbre, a willowy figure, cherry lips, chestnut hair and hazel eyes. She must have been raised in a lumber region.

That Chicago story about a poker check in a man's pocket stopping a bullet and saving his life is very touching, but the man who plays poker checks for life preserves as a steady thing is liable to make a mistake.

"I had you not any medicine that will purify the blood?" "Yes, we keep this a secret at $1 a bottle. It purifies the blood and clears the complexion."

"Well, I don't want to get mixed up about fifty cents, less for the blood? I don't care for the complexion."

"See here," said an angry housewife. "I thought you left me eight pounds of ice yesterday?" "The man said he had. 'You can't fool me,' said the woman; 'I had it weighed, and there were only five pounds.' 'Well,' was the crushing rejoinder, 'don't the tongs weigh anything?'"
